

Kelsey & Josh Dansby

*K*elsey Muncy and Josh Dansby exchanged vows on what was said to be the luckiest wedding day of the century, July 7, 2007 on the crystal white sands of Panama City Beach, Florida. The couple first met through their mutual friends, Bridget and Kyle in their hometown of Hartsville, TN.

The couple were engaged on Kelsey's birthday when Josh brought a bouquet of fresh flowers and an assortment of balloons to Kelsey's work. The attached note included instructions to pop each balloon in the order they were numbered. The last balloon Kelsey popped contained a note inside asking her to marry him. Josh simultaneously got down on one knee—with ring in hand—and proposed just as Kelsey read the note.

The wedding was held beachside on a beautiful sunny day, like so many are in Panama City Beach. The calm breezes and blue skies were accented by the crystal clear waters of the Emerald Coast. The wedding was coordinated by Wendy Adams—owner of PanamaCityBeachWeddings.net.

The wedding was tastefully decorated in a sophisticated coastal elegance style; the wrought iron bridal arch was adorned with delicate white starfish garland and sheer white organza. Accented at the base of the bridal arch was natural sea grass. An elegant bridal pathway of wrought iron stakes and white tulle was created especially for Kelsey as she walked down the isle escorted by her mother Kim. Josh and Kelsey's guests were greeted with a lovely wrought iron easel that held a framed beach poem with their names. Everyone knows you have to be barefoot at a beach wedding, so a decorated shoe basket, accompanied with a whimsical shoe sign, was set on the edge of a sand dune to indicate where guests could store their footwear for the wedding. The bride walked down the isle to "She's Everything" by Tim McGraw. The couple had a sand-in-the-bottle unity ceremony where the bride & groom filled beach sand into a keepsake heart-shaped bottle. Their daughter Whitney was also included and the tunes of “What a Wonderful World” by Louis Armstrong was played during the unity ceremony.

The bride carried an elegant hand-tied bridal bouquet of tropical orange roses wrapped in white satin ribbon. The flower girl was Kelsey’s daughter, Whitney. The Bridal Bouquet was provided by Musgrove Florist of Panama City Beach.

The Bride wore a long ivory empire style wedding gown with a shoulder length white veil... and was barefoot of course! The Groom was dressed in khaki shorts and a white linen shirt. Chelsey, the maid of honor, wore a yellow and orange sun dress and Ben, the best man, wore khaki shorts with a white linen shirt.

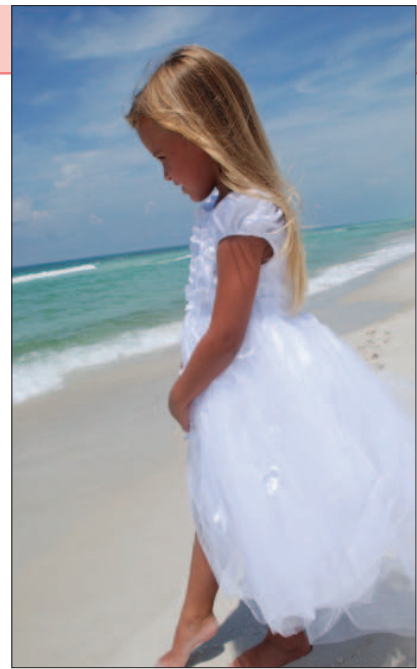

The couple hosted an intimate reception, with a small gathering of family held at Barefoot Beach Club in Panama City Beach. A larger reception with family and all their friends was held in their hometown of Hartsville, TN at the Green Hills Country Club, after Kelsey and Josh returned from their honeymoon.

The reception immediately following the wedding at the Barefoot Beach Club was a sit down luncheon. The menu consisted of fresh local seafood ordered right off the menu. The reception held in the Green Hills Country Club in Tennessee was decorated with a “coastal seaside” theme. The tables were covered with white linens. Each centerpiece consisted of a tulip-style glass vase filled with water and white sand—brought by the bridal couple from Panama City Beach—and a variety of shells with floating candles. Casablanca Lily arrangements were placed throughout to give the room a fresh tropical feel. Fare provided at the reception consisted of assorted hors d’oeuvres; wings with assorted sauces, meatballs in a tangy Italian sauce, assorted deli meats with croissants, a selection of cheeses and crudités. The main dish was chilled emerald coast shrimp served with spicy cocktail sauce and tossed salad.

At the Barefoot Beach Club reception, the cake was provided by Cakes By Tanis of Panama City, Florida. It’s her signature Seashell Wedding Cake which is a big hit with many beach brides. The Seashell design consisted of 3 tiers of white vanilla wedding cake made with fondant icing , accented with real seashells and edible coral reef made from white chocolate. Around the base of the wedding cake, sugar was sprinkled to look like real beach sand!

The wedding cake at the Green Hills Country Club was provided by Mary’s Catering of Hartsville, TN.

It was also a 3 tier cake adorned with real shells.

Kelsey and Josh honeymooned in Panama City Beach at the Emerald Isle before returning home to Hartsville, Tennessee to enjoy life as newlyweds.
